

CALLED TO PROTECT™ FOR YOUTH

Teach teens self-protection skills that will last a lifetime

Praesidium's Called to Protect™ for Youth is the first program specifically designed to teach middle and high school youths how to protect themselves from sexual predators, recognize their personal boundaries, respond if someone tries to violate their boundaries, and what to do if someone is sexually abusing them or someone they know.

The statistics are staggering. Before the age of 18, one in four girls and one in seven boys will be sexually abused. And starting at about the fifth grade, kids can be especially vulnerable.

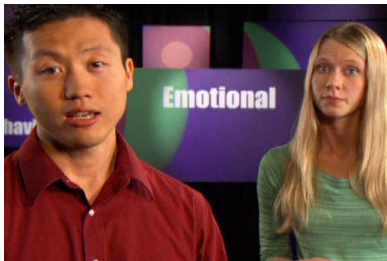

That's when they begin spending more time away from their parents, their curiosity about sexual development increases, and they start testing limits and taking risks.

You can easily implement Called to Protect™ for Youth in your diocese, parishes or schools. Using the three-part DVD, trainer's manual, guided group discussions and creative age-appropriate activities, it is easy to provide invaluable education and skills.

Each Trainer's Kit contains:

- A three-part DVD
- Trainer's manual with complete lesson plans
- Group discussion questions
- Age-appropriate activities
- Youth journal
- Parent handouts
- Behavior management tips
- Answers to FAQs
- How to manage disclosures

Meet Katie and Szuceed

These two young adults host our videos in a manner that puts youths at ease. Katie and Szuceed present just what teens need to know in a non-threatening and educationally sound way.

Called to Protect™ for Youth teaches kids the self-protection skills they need. Churches, schools, camps, retreats, and youth development programs provide the perfect setting for delivering this critical information—information that can prevent a lifetime of suffering.

Now you can implement Called to Protect™ for Youth in every school and parish in your diocese at an affordable price.
